JOB POSTING

Learning Solutions Architect

Believe learning should be fun? Want your work to be energizing rather than enervating? Like to bond with your teammates around the virtual water cooler before diving into your day? Empowering Performance, Inc. (EPI) is seeking a Learning Solutions Architect with positive energy, technical savvy, curiosity, and service-driven professionalism to join our (virtual) team. If you are an experienced, creative, and detail-oriented instructional designer who can craft engaging learning experiences (in-person, virtual, and online) this job is for you!

Think you have what it takes? We want someone who:

- Designs engaging instruction using adult learning principles

- Writes with clarity, precision, and brevity

- Can communicate confidently with people at all levels in an organization, especially SMEs

- Has the ability to manage multiple projects and adapt to changing priorities

- Is adept at using eLearning development tools like Articulate Storyline and Adobe Captivate to design and build engaging learning solutions

- Has experience with graphic design, illustration, and photo manipulation using Adobe Creative Suite (and other appropriate tools) in an instructional context

- Can handle simple audio and video editing

- Possesses a basic knowledge of programming logic (using variables and if/else statements)

If you have these additional desirable skills, even better:

- Ability to build animations and interactions using Flash or similar tools

- Coding knowledge of one or more of the following: HTML/CSS/Javascript/PHP

- Comfortable – even pleased – sharing your expertise in person with professional peers at industry- and client-facing events

- Experience working with a virtual team

We have an immediate need for someone with 5+ years of relevant experience, but are always looking for talented folks at all experience levels.
